Conclusion The project ABOUT consultation Online Psychology: Support about mental health after the pandemic

Tirana, February 11, 2023

Pandemics frequently appear quickly, but their influences, such as and consequences long in health emotional and mental the individuals, can the remain about a period the long after completion the situation emergency. This has been a by learning key that have learning long period of the implementation the project about counseling online psychological, support by cssa and the implemented by counseling center and service psychological, of who offered supporting about they who were facing the consequences of the pandemic. this project has been in and developmental by october 1, 2022 until on january 31, 2023, and is a example the commitment the continued about improving health mental and providing support about they that they had more lot need.

During this period, 82 calls are completed by citizens, the majority from their by shkodra , but also by villages around , malësia e madhe , puka and tirana , showing a need the visible about supporting emotions and this project has provided the possibility of online counseling , making it it the accessible about individual that can the not have opportunities the visit personally center about services such . Also, for they that they have requested, is enable also counseling in center facilities about a supporting more the directly.

A by aspects that encouraged us long implementation this action is the continuous increase in the number the call by month in month. This has given us security and faith in the effectiveness of services that we were offering, as and has shown that the request about supporting psychological it was higher than we had predicted. this phenomenon is clear evidence of impact the pandemic in health mental the individual and need about supporting the lasting long period the difficult.

In in most cases, individuals that ask supporting expressed worries the related to post- traumatic stress, a problem that has affected a number the great people after the period of the pandemic. They also ask help about treating symptoms the depression, as and about generalized anxiety disorder. many from their have reported symptoms somatic, like pain headache, fatigue the excessive, and worries the digestion, what are the related to the consequences of stress and concerns emotional. however, these worries were not the frequent, but those indicated a related the closely between soundness emotional and soundness physical.

A by aspects more encouraging the this action it was fact that lot by individual that ask support, have continuous the us contact even after visits first, looking for supporting the continuing and help about dealing with challenges emotions and mentally with him which were facing. this conclusion the continued your phones has given us faith in effect long-term the service that we offered and has shown that this project has helped individual the ease symptoms post-covid and the improve their health mental. this added us the belief that apart from easing the symptoms, this project has contributed also to community education about the importance of care about health mental and how the manage stress and consequences emotions that can the appear in period the difficult.

A learning the crucial that have learning by this project is that consciousness about the importance of care psychological and about its consequences the multilateral, not is a process the immediately, but coming gradually. education and delivery the support continued are the needed about the growing terms and acceptance of need about supporting psychological. this is a by achievement more the important this project: raising awareness the community about health mental and his influence in general well - being the individual and society.

In conclusion the project, we are the satisfied with the results that have reached and the sure this was it only one step of front in assistance and further support about individual who are facing the consequences of the pandemic. Counseling center and service psychological, in cooperation with ASCS, will continued the provide supporting and services such for the help individual the face health challenges mental and the improve quality of life of the theirs .

NGO Exchange Program

Tirana, June 16, 2023

The NGO Exchange Program, organized by Partners Albania, has continued with important meetings and visits for civil society organizations, providing opportunities for the exchange of experiences and increased cooperation between different actors. The program participants, who represent a wide range of organizations from all over Albania, had the opportunity to visit the Agency for Civil Society Support (ASCS) and the ALTRI Center, two important institutions for the development of civil society and efforts to strengthen democracy and the rule of law in the country.

The visit to the ASCS was an opportunity to discuss efforts to develop cooperation between civil society organizations and to identify ways to strengthen the influence of civil society in public policies and in the processes of drafting and approving laws. One of the most important issues that was addressed was the creation of opportunities for financial support for NGOs, as well as how the Agency can help organizations to increase their capacities and contribute to the development of policies that serve the interests of citizens.

Another important discussion was the role of civil society in the fight against corruption. Representatives of the ALTRI Center emphasized that civil society organizations are key actors in efforts to improve transparency and ensure a fair and equal environment for all. They shared their achievements related to research work in the field of criminal and civil judicial issues and discussed the need for close cooperation with the media, to ensure that the voices of NGOs are heard and have an impact on policymaking.

Meeting of the National Civil Society Council (NSCS)

Tirana, June 19, 2023

On June 19, 2023, an important meeting of the National Civil Society Council (NSCS) was held at the Prime Minister's Office. This meeting, organized with the participation of representatives of state institutions and civil society, aimed to review key issues affecting the development and strengthening of civil society in Albania, as well as to determine further steps to improve cooperation between these interest groups.

One of the main topics of the meeting was the review of the findings and suggestions that emerged from the National Meeting with Civil Society, held on April 24, 2023, in Tirana. This meeting aimed to identify the challenges and opportunities that civil society must have a more important and direct role in decision-making processes and in the development of public policies.

The findings from this meeting were rich with thoughts and analysis on the possibility of including more civil society organizations in discussions and decision-making, as well as on how to improve cooperation between state institutions and interest groups.

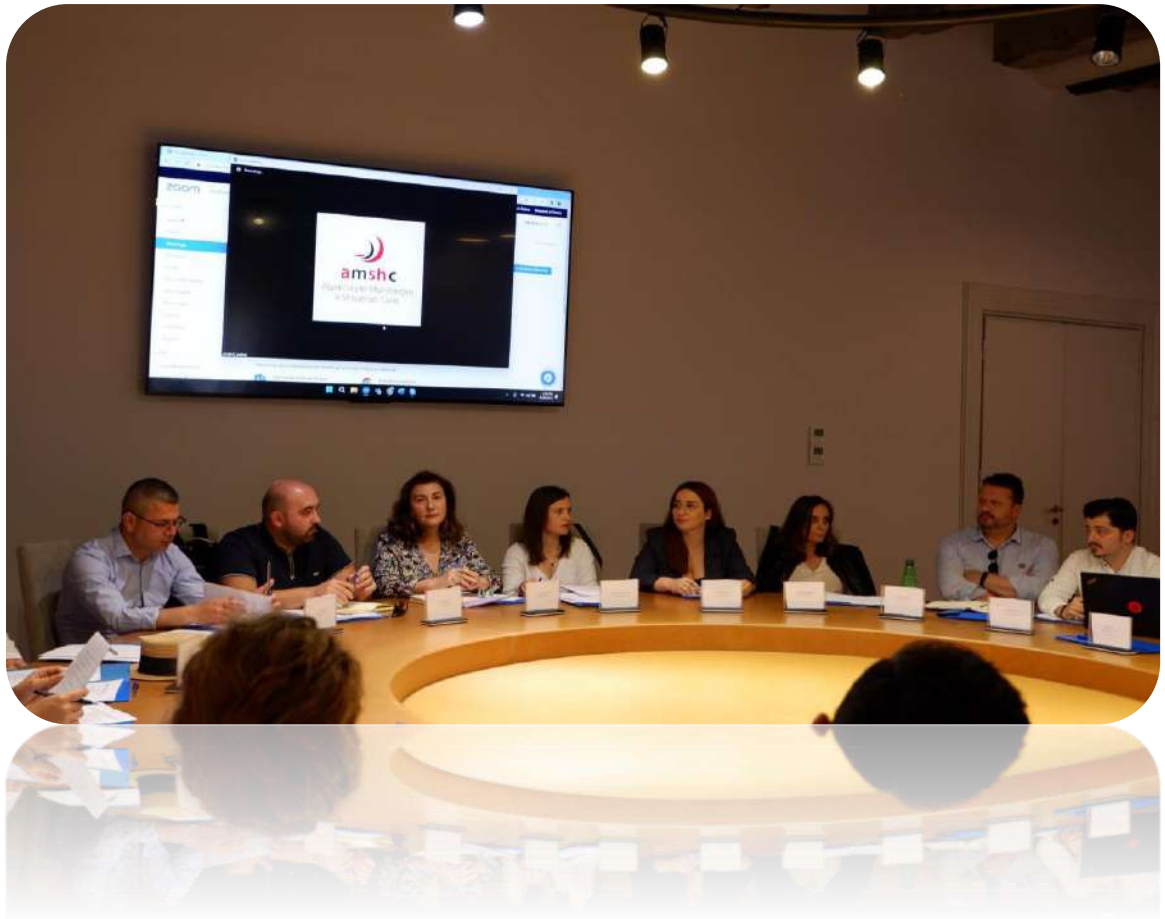

Another issue discussed during the meeting was the draft document of the new Roadmap for civil society activity, which will guide activities and strategies for the coming years. The timeline for the implementation process of this roadmap was also discussed, as well as the challenges that may arise during the efforts to achieve the set objectives.

In this regard, the Council discussed the importance of adopting clear and sustainable policies that will enable a sustainable development of civil society, giving it more opportunities to be an active part of the decision-making process at the national level.

At the end of the meeting, one of the key moments was the selection of the civil society representative who will participate in the Inter-Ministerial Committee for the Sustainable Development Goals 2030 (SDGs 2030). This committee has an important role in defining and monitoring policies aimed at achieving the sustainable development goals in Albania, including the engagement of civil society and other important stakeholders.

Representing civil society in this committee is an important step to ensure that civil society voices are heard and considered in national-level decision-making, contributing to sustainable and inclusive development.

The meeting of June 19, 2023 was an opportunity to deepen discussions on the role of the National Civil Society Council and the possibilities of greater involvement of civil society in decision-making processes. With a focus on increasing cooperation and raising the voice of civil society, the Council continues to be an important platform for addressing the needs and efforts of civil society in Albania.

In this regard, it remains important to continue efforts to improve the involvement of civil society at all levels of the decision-making process, as well as to ensure that future development is sustainable, fair and inclusive for all citizens.
